Activity Suggestions

Your student has learned about the relationship between money and happiness. Money can be used to make other people happy, and by making other people happy, you can make yourself happy too. Together as a family, discuss what makes you feel happy.

One of the concepts in this episode is how to give back to your community. Discuss with your student, how does your family participate in your local community?

Now ask your student to think of three things that your local community needs. Discuss these ideas with your family, and select one topic to focus on. For that one item, what is something that your student can do to help the cause? Can they invest their time and effort? Can they think of a way to raise money or recruit volunteers to help that cause?

- Have students start their own Journal of Personal Financial Education and continue to add to it.

History/Social Studies

What is the dollar value today for that same level of happiness? Make a graph with one point for 2010 at $75,000 and one point for this year and the current amount. Is it easy or difficult to predict what the dollar amount might be next year? In five years?
