Taxes are used for the greater good; the benefits to society outweigh the costs to society. Not all individuals will bear the same costs or share the same benefits.

Activity Suggestions

Your student has learned basic information about taxes in this episode of Biz Kid$. They were introduced to young entrepreneurs who shared their experiences regarding planning for and paying their taxes. Have a family discussion about taxes and how they impact your family specifically. Consider the benefits that taxes provide, as well as the costs.

Share with your student how you plan to meet your tax obligations, and the importance of filing your taxes on time. How do you organize your information for filing taxes? Do you use an online tax preparation program or work with a CPA? If possible, show your student actual tax forms, such as a 1040 or your W-2 form.

Show your child a utility bill, such as for phone service, water service, gas or electric service, and point out the taxes listed on the bills. Help your child find the local sales tax rate on a receipt from a recent purchase. Using the internet or a library, research why your local sales tax rate is at that level, and what services it pays for. Find out how sales taxes are approved and enacted. If your state does not have sales tax, look up a nearby state that does pay sales tax.

CURRICULUM CONNECTIONS

Language Arts

- Have students construct sentences, write a paragraph, or create a story, skit, or dialog using Biz Term$.
- Have students create a class Dictionary of Financial Terms using Biz Term$.
- Have students start their own Journal of Personal Financial Education and continue to add to it.

History/Social Studies

- Sanitation services are usually funded by taxes. Using the internet or a library, find out more about ancient Roman sanitation systems. How were they paid for? How do they compare to today's systems that are funded by our tax dollars?

Mathematics

- You are paying taxes on all of the money that you earned last year, minus your personal exemption. If you earned $50,000 as a single person, and your exemption is $3,900, what is your taxable income? Now, the tax charts show that you will owe $7,460 in federal taxes and $1,898 in state taxes. But wait! You have already paid $8,400 in Federal taxes and $1,200 in state taxes. Who owes who, and how much, for Federal and for State taxes?

Economics

- In this episode, one of the Biz Kid$ mentions that property taxes are handled differently in different states. Investigate your state to find out how they handle property taxes. What is that revenue used for? How is it calculated? How many times per year does it have to be paid (once, twice, quarterly, or other)?

Optional Vocabulary Extensions

Make Art!

Ask students to create personal illustrated glossaries using sketches or cartoons to visually represent the meaning of each Biz Term.

Make It Personal!

Provide students with dictionaries and ask students to re-write formal definitions for each Biz Term in their own words to demonstrate comprehension.

Activity #2:

BUSINESS DEDUCTIONS

WORKSHEET FOR STUDENTS

Directions

In this episode, the Biz Kid$ found out about paying taxes. Remember that if you own the business, where you are the boss, your taxes will be different than if you are the employee. If you are the boss, you use some additional forms, and you get to deduct business expenses. This means you will pay less in taxes.

You are an actress, like Amanda, and you are the boss. Which of the following items do you think you should be allowed to deduct as business expenses for your work?

1. Visit to the hair salon? Yes No Why or why not?
 What if it's a really expensive salon? Yes No Why or why not?

2. Taxi service to and from work? Yes No Why or why not?
 What if it's a limo and not a taxi? Yes No Why or why not?

3. Doggie day-care service for your new puppy so they're not alone while you're at work?
 Yes No Why or why not?

4. Now think about it this way. You are the IRS. You have to decide whether or not the items above should be allowed as a legitimate business expense for an actress. Would you agree with the Yes/No answers that you selected above? Why or why not?

Have students discuss these ideas and share their answers with the class.

Activity #3:
